10. Course Aims:
The overarching aims of the stage 2 electives are as follows: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Encourage interdisciplinary, critical reflexivity from within an open set of choices; • Foster deep investigative approaches to new or unfamiliar areas of practice and theory; • Cultivate self-directed leadership and initiative-taking in both applied and abstract modes of practice/ study not necessarily associated with a student's particular creative specialism; • Enable flexible, ethical exploration and connection of diverse knowledge and understanding within a specialist programme of study. The course aims to: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Introduce you to a range of historical and contemporary ideas that inform the emergence of Queer Theory as a complex field that fosters new alignments and strategies in art/s based and/or written forms of production. • Enable you to reflect upon, review and debate your knowledge and understanding of relevant theories and contexts and potential new frames of reference.

- Enable you to develop your intellectual, analytical, critical and evaluative skills by investigating the multi-modal nature of queerness as a theoretical framework appropriate to your writing and/or practice.
- Enable you to enhance your knowledge and understanding of professional practice via the development of your communication and presentation skills.

11. Intended Learning Outcomes of Course:

By the end of this course students will be able to:

- Demonstrate a breadth and depth of knowledge and understanding of a chosen aspect of Queer Studies in Arts and Culture as part of an informed dialogue with practice and with reference to historical and/ or contemporary contexts.
- Imaginatively conceptualise and speculate on your topic while applying your analytical and critical skills to problem solving, reflective evaluation and the interpretation of your chosen line of enquiry through the synthesis and realisation of your work in an appropriate form.
- Demonstrate your effective communication and presentation skills via the application of appropriate research methodologies and demonstrate your knowledge of ethical practice and responsibility in research and the presentation of research.
- Exercise initiative, personal responsibility, effective independent and/or collaborative learning through your engagement with professional practice in the presentation of your work.

12. Indicative Content:

This course will introduce you to the concept of Queer Praxis through a range of both historical and contemporary examples of writing, arts practice and creative methods. From the 20th-century philosophy of M. Foucault, through the emergence of Queer Theory per se in the early 1990s (E. Kosofsky-Sedgwick, J. Butler, J. Halberstam) to contemporary thinkers (K. Barad, M. Chen) exploring the impact of queer ideas on bodies of knowledge such as quantum theory, race and animal studies. We will look at how thinking queerly can generate, bend, dismantle and reinvent the potentials that contributes not only to the complexities of contemporary identity politics, but also to critical thinking across the Sciences, Archival Studies and Linguistics.

The course will enable you to explore your creative practice by introducing you to ideas of difference and disorientation (J. E. Munoz, S. Ahmed) reflection and diffraction (K. Barad). We will look at how methods of queer praxis disrupt and recompose the topics of time, space and relations (E. Freeman, K. Macharia) and how it manifests within discreet forms such as performance art and new queer cinema (L. Metherell, L. Stupart). We will discuss Aids and post-Aids representation; self-fashioning and topics of desire, technology, queer spatiality and queer temporality. This course aims to enhance your knowledge and understanding of queer methods and strategies enabling you to engage with your own working practices anew.

13. Description of Summative Assessment Methods:

Work presented for assessment will demonstrate the extent to which you have fulfilled the learning outcomes of the course.

You will be assessed on your ability to:

<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Demonstrate a critical understanding of the concepts, theories and practices discussed within the course; • Reflexively relate queer concepts, theories, strategies and practices to your own work; • Devise and manage your own research projects.
