9. When Taught:
This course is taught over 23 weeks from August/September to February each year to support the effective development of students and their portfolios to fit with the timescales of application and interview to HE through UCAS.

10. Course Aims:
Through studio-based practice, the Course aims to work with students to support the development of high-quality portfolio work to support successful application and progression to further study within creative disciplines at HE level. It seeks to do this by: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• Introducing students to the key pedagogical practices of a studio-based learning environment</li> <li>• Supporting the development of basic understanding of the key concepts, language and principles of a range of creative practices.</li> <li>• Develop practical and conceptual skills through reflective and collaborative learning</li> <li>• Support the development of students to start the process to student-initiated practice and peer supported learning</li> <li>• Introduce students to writing, research and presentation skills</li> </ul>

- Develop student's understanding and requirements of their specific subject area to support effective decision making in the application process and presentation of a portfolio of work
- Assist students to successfully produce and present a portfolio of work developed throughout the year which exemplifies and supports their progression to HE.

11. Intended Learning Outcomes of Course:

By the end of this course students will be able to:

Knowledge and Understanding

1. Demonstrate an understanding and awareness of the basic principles, analytical concepts, terminology and practices within a range of creative interests and areas followed by the student
2. Demonstrate the ability to relate the basic concepts of creative practices to their portfolio development and practice
3. Demonstration of supporting skills relating to wider knowledge domains (including Critical Inquiry)

Applied Knowledge and Understanding: Studio Based Practice

4. To demonstrate the use of creative 2D and 3D making and technical skills in the practical application of creative practices
5. Demonstrate and evidence an understanding of the application of relevant creative principles to effectively complete briefs and other activity
6. Demonstrate a basic critical awareness of their studio practice

Communication, Autonomy and Working with others

7. Evidence an ability to work independently and collectively to organise and manage time and resources to achieve the successful outcomes of project briefs and activities set
8. To present and communicate ideas, concepts and information both verbally and written to their peers and staff
9. Have an awareness of the available pathways, progression opportunities and relevant application processes to allow effective and successful progression to Higher Education

12. Indicative Content:

1. The course is team taught with specialist staff from Open Studio and input from others as required to allow for a broad range of practitioners from different disciplines to work with the students.
2. Creative Project Briefs are delivered to explore and improve core experimental and practical skills in both 2D & 3D.
3. This is supplemented by Specialist Practical Skills Workshops in areas such as Experimental Plaster Casting & Printmaking, Life Drawing/Painting, Paper Engineering, Material Exploration and Presentation Skills.
4. A Personal Development Project Brief encourages students to establish independent practice, underpinned by an introduction to research methodologies appropriate to their chosen specialisms.
5. Students are supported in developing communication, presentation and organisational skills through developing their portfolio and application to HE, 'Crits', Creative Writing Workshops and curating the end of course student exhibition.

21. Additional Relevant Information:

This course has been delivered more than 18 years and has a high success rate in student retention and completion. On average annually 80% of student's progress to HE courses, within Scotland, UK wide and European Union.

Credit enhances the student learning experience, supports their onward progression to GSA 1st year, 1st year programmes across Scotland/UK wide institutions, and for an increasing (albeit small at present) number of applicants to 2nd year and MA Courses, and in keeping with the strategic aim to develop a credit bearing offer through Open Studio.

Students are supported throughout the programme to engage effectively with the both the core services and cultural resources of the institution and city to fully explore their portfolios.

Guest lectures and Q&A sessions are available with current GSA staff and students to help develop and clarify the student's progression aims. This is also supported by Mentoring Activity – current GSA Undergraduates, Ex-Portfolio Preparation Students sharing knowledge/experiences etc.

Students are also invited to GSA Events, Exhibitions, Lectures, for example, SoFA Friday Lecture Series, UG Student Pop-Up Exhibitions to support the progression to an HE environment.
